Activity 06

Form passive voice sentences to describe what is happening in the picture.

E.g.: The goods are being unloaded from a lorry.

Appendix 4Learning PointPresent Perfect Tense (passive)

The present perfect tense is a grammatical combination of the present tense and the perfect aspect. It is used to express a past event that has results in the present.

In the passage on “Internet: a boon or a bane?” the verbs in bold refer to present perfect tense actions. Although these actions are over, the results are still felt.

Here is how present perfect is formed.

Subject	Has/Have	Past participle form of the verb
